MANY CITIES HIT

Ulster Government To Help Police Quell
Disturbances

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 21.—Shootings, incendiarism and bombings have made the week-end in Belfast one of the most terrible yet experienced. Nine people were killed, making a total of 32 shot dead within a week and also many have been admitted to hospital with gunshot wounds.

The fire brigade responded to seven calls in ten hours, ending with a call at three in the morning to two bomb outrages.

Among the outstanding incidents was when gunmen attacked the police who were protecting the firemen coping with an outbreak.

Armed men accosted three homegoing workmen and inquired their religion, one was not harmed but his two fellow workmen were shot dead.

Armed men entered the Corporation Store at two in the morning and set fire to gasoline stores and other property.

A number of attacks have been made on women at their own residences.

London, May 21.—Unlike most of the recent outrages in Ulster, yesterday's operations were in the nature of a widespread organized rebellion. Details are meager owing to the dislocation of communications, but a considerable number of rebels was involved and heavy casualties are feared.

The Northern Government announces that it has taken steps in conjunction with the police and military to cope with the situation.

London, May 20.—Four persons were killed and 12 wounded in the shootings at Belfast yesterday.

The outrages, including many incendiary fires, were continued today where hitherto three persons have been killed.

There were also numerous outrages in Antrim and Down last night and this morning, including the destruction of the mansions of Lord O'Neill and Baroness De Ros, attacks on various police barracks and setting fire to railway stations and houses.

The North Antrim communications with Belfast have been interrupted. The Lister Cabinet has been convoked to consider the situation.

London, May 19.—In the Daily Eireann today, Mr. Arthur Griffith announced the renewed failure of peace negotiations and moved that the election should take place on June 15.

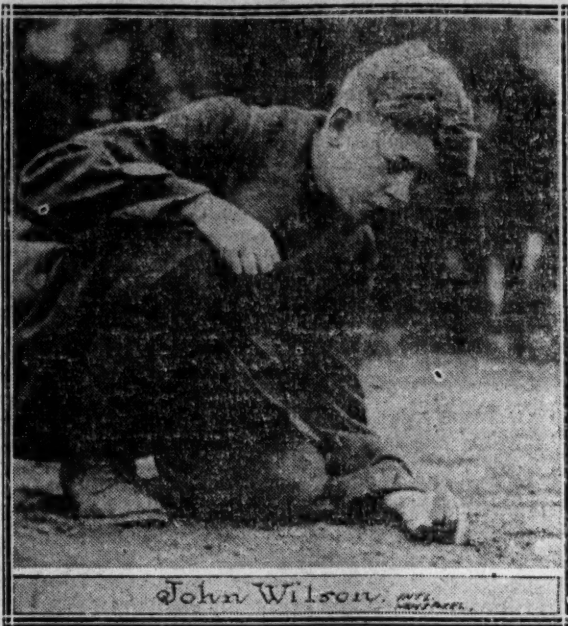

He declared that the voters will be enabled to record their will on the Treaty, whatever intimidation may be opposed to them by representatives of merely two percent of the population.

The Speaker of the Dail Eireann today announced that Mr. Michael Collins and Mr. De Valera have agreed to the formation of a national coalition Government. Candidates for election will be nominated by party executives. After the election the Executive will consist of a President, a Minister of Defence and nine other Ministers, five from the majority and four from the minority.

Mr. de Valera seconded Mr. Arthur Griffith's motion to hold an election in June. The motion was passed with cheers. The Dail Eireann then adjourned till May 31.

The coalition will be formed without prejudice to the respective positions of the two sections. The present strength of the parties will be preserved and the present deputies retained unless any outside interest puts forward successful opposition candidates as the agreement expressly permits. Should the coalition find it necessary to dissolve, further elections will be held as soon as possible on the basis of adult suffrage.

He's Champion "Miggle" Shooter

John Wilson

REMEMBERING the days of their youth, members of the Jersey City (N. J.) Rotarians staged a "miggle" shooting contest. It was won by John Wilson, a pupil in St. Bridget School.

Having the title, he now is willing to meet all who think they know how to play marbles.

3,000 ON STRIKE AT NIKKA MILLS; WANT PIECE WORK

Pootung Cotton Mill Employees
Out Second Time
In Month

A second strike, even more serious than the first evidently, has tied up the Nikka Cotton Mills works in Pootung following disagreement between employers and workers.

In all about 3,000 employees have walked out. Their demands are for official recognition of the Weavers' Union and for payment of wages to all workers on a piece work basis. Old hands at the mill enjoy a piece work scale of pay and the other employees insist that there be a more equitable arrangement. The old hands, they state, are able to earn from 70 to 80 cents per day, while new hands draw a definite wage of 39 cents. The strike is the second within a month's time.

At a meeting held Sunday the strikers discussed and formulated their demands and also added the demand that certain Japanese foremen in the spinning and picking departments be discharged because of alleged ill-treatment of the employees under them.

U. S. May Take Part In Hague Parleys

(Reuter's Service)
Washington, May 22.—The terms on which American participation in an international discussion might be secured are indicated in a statement by officials in close touch with the Administration, who state that the United States is willing to join the other nations in working out plans for the restoration of Europe, if they are convinced that political subjects will be barred. Some officials are of the opinion that an invitation from Europe to a conference, with a definitely defined scope for the solution of economic problems, would receive a more cordial reception than former councils have received.

Lloyd George Gets Big Welcome Home

(Reuter's Service)
London, May 20.—A huge crowd, including 200 members of Parliament and politicians, gave Mr. Lloyd George a wonderful reception on his arrival tonight at Victoria Station from Genoa.

The Lord Chamberlain was among the first with congratulations, conveying a message from the King welcoming the Premier home.

The popular greeting was continued along the route to Downing Street, where another series of informal receptions by Ministers and others took place.

NINETY FIVE LOST AS P. & O. LINER IS SUNK IN COLLISION

The Egypt Rammed In

SINKS RAPIDLY

French Steamer Seine
Hits Other Vessel
Amidship

(Reuter's Service)

Brest, May 12.—The P. & O. steamer Egypt, from London to Bombay with mails and passengers came into collision with the French steamer Seine at 7:30 yesterday morning, 30 miles from here. The former sank while the latter was badly damaged. Forty four passengers and two hundred and ninety of the crew have been saved.

London, May 22.—Atmospheric conditions favored wireless communication and as a consequence the Egypt's S. O. S. was picked up by numerous vessels, some nearing Plymouth and others in the vicinity of the disaster. The latter, as well as French warships which put out from Brest rushed to the scene of the disaster, but the severity of the collision caused the vessel's speedy disappearance and precluded any possibility of assistance although there is a bare likelihood that a few further survivors may have been picked up.

Events followed one another with bewildering speed leaving the passengers little clear recollection of what happened. The first connected story given by survivors shows that the Egypt was proceeding slowly and cautiously for several hours in a night-like fog.

The majority of passengers had sat down to dinner when a terrific shock threw them from their chairs, stunning several and causing general hurry to the deck. The water rushing in a gaping hole in the side confirmed their fears that the vessel was doomed. Aided by a calm sea and the officers' heroic efforts, the great bulk of the Egyptian freight was got clear before the Egypt finally plunged bow first, creating a suction which carried down a few who remained near.

Notwithstanding her own damage the Seine picked up thirty-two survivors. French warships brought in a few more. Twenty-two bodies are lying in the Naval Hospital at Brest but the accurate death roll is not yet known.

The Seine struck the Egypt on the port side between the funnels and the liner sank in twenty minutes. Many were thrown into the sea and clung to floating objects until they were picked up by boats from the Egypt and the Seine.

Fifteen passengers and eighty of the crew are missing, including the ship's doctor and the Chief Engineer. The Captain was saved.

One man plunged into the sea carrying two children. The Captain added that the Seine utilized all her life saving appliances in the ever thickening fog and remained on the scene of the disaster for four and a half hours.

VOLUNTEERS IN MARTIAL ARRAY FOR INSPECTION

All Units Are Reviewed
By Major General Sir
John Fowler

THORNG ATTENDS

Local Fighters Present
Fine Appearance In Parade

In impressive martial array all of the units of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps participated yesterday in the annual ceremonial inspection parade which was held at 6 o'clock on the polo field of the Public Recreation Ground. Though no invitations were issued for the inspection and provision was made only for members of the Consular Body and the Municipal Councillors and their families a great throng gathered to witness the spectacle.

It was a strikingly soldierly scene that was presented when the long line of khaki clad men, a thousand strong, snapped to attention to the orders of their commanders. At the reviewing center Major-General Sir John Fowler, K.C.M.G., D.S.O., C.B., commanding the British forces in China, received the salute and then attended by his aide, Captain Fisher and Col. R. Mar-Johnson, Commandant of the S.V.C., Major H. W. Pilcher, second in command, and 2nd Lieut. T. G. Drakeford, orderly, he conducted the inspection riding the length of the khaki line.

The Light Horse and Field Artillery with the gun carriages, artillery trucks and armored cars were drawn up at the Northern end of the line. Then in order were the Maxin Gun Company, Maritime Company, Italian Company, Company 'A' British, Company 'B' British, the Customs Company, the American Company, the Portuguese Company, the Japanese Company, the Chinese Company, the Shanghai Scottish and the Reserves.

The Municipal Band, drawn up behind the line, played as the inspection proceeded and when it was over and General Fowler again had taken his position at the reviewing base to the strains of music the parade of the companies marched around the field and past the reviewing base.

As the line reformed after the parade General Fowler exchanged greetings with Mr. H. G. Simms, Chairman of the Municipal Council, who was present with the other members of the Settlement's governing body and who joined the group of officers for a short time.

At an order the whole long line marched forward a hundred yards to the center of the field, then, riding forward General Fowler summoned the company commanders and delivered a brief address of congratulation. This brought the ceremony to a conclusion.

Chinese Alleged To Have Been Slain In Fight Over Debt

An inquest was begun by Mixed Court authorities yesterday over the body of a Chinese who is said to have died as a result of a fight with a Kompo coolie in an alleyway off Lay Road.

Report of the death was made to the police Sunday morning and Detective Sergeant Gabbott made inquiries at the home of the deceased, one Jan Te-yen, at 203 Wharfing Road. The man's wife declared that she and her husband went to the Kompo man's place of abode to collect the sum of 200 cash which was owing to them. The Kompo man, she said, started a fight and struck her husband with an iron bar, causing injuries from which he died Saturday night.

Police inquiries have not succeeded in finding anyone else who knew of the fight and as it is alleged to have occurred in a thickly populated section some doubt is thrown upon the woman's story. Assessor Mead ordered an adjournment of the inquest pending a postmortem examination.

FOREIGNER DIES OF PISTOL WOUND SELF-INFLICTED

Mr. George Tyler, Of S.-N.
Railway, Found Dead
In Home

An inquest was opened and adjourned yesterday in connection with the death of Mr. George Tyler, locomotive foreman of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, who shot himself in his home near the Shanghai North station early Sunday evening. Despondency and nervous strain are believed to have been the cause of the act.

Mr. Tyler, who was a British subject, was about fifty years of age and had been connected with the railway for many years, coming to China 17 years ago. He had a wide acquaintance and was popular with all who knew him. He is survived by his widow and seven children, several of them young—the youngest being four. A daughter was married only last week.

Just previous to the shooting Mr. Tyler had been having tea with his son and daughter and Mr. B. J. Glendinning, chief traffic inspector of the Shanghai-Nanking line. He left the room and shortly thereafter a shot was heard. A .38 calibre revolver, four chambers of which had been loaded, was found beside the body. The bullet wound was in the mouth and death was evidently almost instantaneous. The tragedy occurred at about 6:40 p.m.

The inquest was opened yesterday morning at the mortuary by British Coroner G. W. King and after evidence of identification had been given was adjourned until Friday.

Larceny Hearing Coming Up Today

Charges of larceny against H. A. Gilbert which were called for hearing yesterday in the British Police Court before Magistrate G. W. King were continued until this morning after Mr. S. H. McKean, who appeared for the prosecution, has asked for a continuance of a week to which the accused objected.

After the defendant had contended that the case against him should be a civil action, Mr. McKean set forth that Gilbert had obtained goods to the value of $325 from Weeks & Company last January by a trick. It was alleged that he had ordered the goods sent to his quarters cash on delivery then obtained possession of them for a time by a ruse, abstracting the goods and making up parcels like those he had received which were returned to the company's store. It was alleged he then disappeared and was arrested recently when he returned to Shanghai from Amoy.

CREEK PIRATES ROB FOREIGNER ON HOUSEBOAT

Armed Gang Loots Craft
Near Shanghai
Limits

The increasing boldness of that offshoot of the pirate tribe which operates along the waterways about Shanghai was instanced in startling fashion last Saturday night when a quartette of armed men boarded the houseboat of Mr. P. Tizon within ten miles of this city, fired three shots, beat up two amahs and escaped with money, clothing and other property to the value of $630. Several other craft, carrying Chinese passengers, were robbed the same night, evidently by the same gang.

Mr. Tizon, with his wife and two small children, was returning from a houseboat trip which included the pilgrimage to Zo-so, a journey undertaken at this time of year by thousands of Catholics hereabouts, both foreign and Chinese. The boat was tied up at a place called Singkaiwu, only about four miles from Hungjiao, on account of low water and the passengers were asleep when the robbers came aboard at about 11:30 p.m. Mr. Tizon was aroused by someone shaking him and looked up to find a pistol thrust into his face, while its wielder, speaking the Northern dialect, ordered him not to move or make any outcry. The other robbers, armed with iron bars, attacked the amahs when they began to raise an alarm and both were painfully though not seriously injured. The shots fired by the leader of the gang were evidently only for intimidation purposes. Mr. Tizon picked up two of the expended cartridges next morning.

The loot carried off by the thieves included, besides money, Mr. Tizon's gold watch, a pair of gold rimmed spectacles, overcoat, silk dresses and other articles of clothing.

On his return to Shanghai yesterday the victimized Mr. Tizon reported the robbery to the Japanese Consulate-General and the Municipal police. He informed the Chinese water police of the district shortly after the occurrence.

CHANG SAYS HE IS RAISING NEW ARMY OF 200,000 MEN

IS BACK OF WALL

Peking Divided On Disposition Of Fengtien
Chief

BY JOSEF W. HALL

Staff Correspondent the China Press
Paoingfu, May 22.—General Wu Pei-fu has received another telegram signed "Chang Tso-lin," in which the defeated Fengtien leader sets forth that he has no enmity against Chihli, but that he intends to revenge himself on President Hsu, and that to accomplish this he is raising an army of 200,000 men in preparation for an attack on Peking.

General Wu says he considers Chang mentally deranged, and that he does not propose to answer his telegram.

A telegram from Hunan says that Chao Heng-ti has joined the movement for the reassembly of the 1915 parliament.

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Peking, May 22.—The foreign Consuls at Mukden appear to have refrained from asking the local authorities what importance could be placed upon General Chang Tso-lin's independence manifesto, because such an inquiry might be held to show official cognizance of the manifesto, which the Legations have scrupulously avoided, but one Consul-General has since been told by Mr. Wang Yung-chang, Civil Governor under General Chang Tso-lin, that it was not intended yet to declare the independence of Manchuria.

Peking, May 22.—Some of the Chihli forces have reached Lanchow and, with the exception of a small portion, all the Fengtien troops have gone beyond the Great Wall. Beyond these facts, no details of the military positions at the front have been received today.

The Chinese papers say that General Chang Tso-lin has reached Chinchow, while, according to foreign reports, he remains at Shanhaikuan.

The main Chihli force continues its progress towards Lanchow and it seems probable that General Wu Pei-fu intends to clear the region of the Great Wall.

Peking, May 22.—Many members of the Old Parliament went to Tientsin yesterday, believing that a preparatory reorganization department is being established at the Chihli Provincial Assembly rooms.

Peking, May 22.—It is unofficially reported that President Hsu Shih-chang has requested General Chang Tso-lin, through Mr. Yuan Nai-kun, immediately to retire to Mukden and there await developments, which might be more favorable to General Chang than in his present position.

This reflects the views of most of the Chinese officials in Peking, who are mainly concerned with the immediate future and are intent alone on seeing the end of hostilities and entering the period of reconstruction with the least delay, but there is a strong body of public opinion, on the other hand, which is convinced that it is best to make a "clean sweep" of General Chang Tso-lin, contending that if he is allowed to resume office he will quickly resume his intrigues and possibly thwart General Wu Pei-fu's efforts at reunification.

In this connection, General Chang Tso-lin's opponents urge the appointment of General Wang Chen-ping, General Wu's most brilliant general, as the ruler of Fengtien. General Wang is a native of Fengtien and is popular with all classes there.

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Peking, May 21.—It was reported from Chingwangiao last night that 15,000 Fengtien soldiers left there for the north by rail during the previous twenty-four hours.

while 20,000 soldiers detained at Shanghai. The soldiers from Kueih and Luanchow have all arrived at Changli.

Four small railway bridges have been burnt this side of Changli but the Luanchow bridge is not damaged.

An international special train was held up at Kueih owing to the derailment of the engine.

Unofficial Chinese reports say that General Chang Tso-lin is establishing a new base at Chingowfu, but it is thought more probable that he is making a depot there with a force to guard supplies coming by water.

The retirement of the Fengtien forces from Luanchow did not affect the preparations of the Chihli troops. It is believed that, if General Wu Pei-fu does not attack outside the Great Wall, he will at least leave an army on that border of the province to guard against further invasion by the Northerners. If there is no further withdrawal of Fengtien troops their presence might force General Wu Pei-fu to attack. It is stated that a flanking move is now more away for the Chihli forces, than when the main Fengtien force lay behind the Luan river.

There is no doubt that a Chihli advance around the Fengtien flank precipitated the latest withdrawal. It appears that the position which the Fengtien forces described as on the most modern principles was well planned to resist frontal attack but the flanks were utterly neglected. This second hasty retirement from a strong position is regarded as indicating the inability of General Chang Tso-lin to cope with the Chihli army.

(Eastern News Agency)
Tientsin, May 21.—It is authoritatively reported that the Fengtien army commenced the retreat of the whole troops on May 19 at 2 p.m. and that the Fengtien soldiers, who had withdrawn outside the Great Wall up to May 20, numbered 28,000 strong.

Chang Tso-lin, passed Shanghai on the afternoon of the 20th instant. There is no longer a single shadow of the Fengtien soldiers in Luanchow, and when they retreated, they cut all telegraph wires and destroyed two bridges of the Peking-Mukden Railway for fear lest they should be pursued by the Chihli forces. The destroyed bridges, however, are expected to be repaired in the course of today.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, May 20.—The Cabinet's statement regarding Chang Tso-lin's independence manifesto, published in part Sunday, concludes: "The Government has dismissed General Chang Tso-lin and appointed Tsuchun and Civil Governors to attend to the affairs of Manchuria and has also resumed the control of Mongolian affairs formerly in the hands of General Chang Tso-lin. This shows the great importance the Government places on the affairs of those regions."

"Moreover, the dismissal of General Chang Tso-lin merely meant a change in the person ruling those regions, under the Government. It had nothing to do with the regions themselves. The territories of the Chinese Republic are laid down in the Constitution and cannot be influenced by General Chang Tso-lin. As a consequence of his dismissal, General Chang Tso-lin declares that the aforesaid regions are no longer part of the Republic. This proves him to be guilty of the serious crimes of violating the Constitution and rebelling against the nation."

"General Chang Tso-lin says that treaties and agreements made by President Hsu Shih-chang on or after May 1 shall not be recognised unless he approves, but the Central Government is recognised by the Powers and such treaties will be legal. Since his dismissal General Chang Tso-lin is an ordinary citizen. How can he defy the Government? His announcement shows that he intended to act the part of a traitor. The Government hopes that the representatives of the Powers will not be fooled by General Chang Tso-lin."

"It is understood that the Cabinet has sent the foregoing to the Legations."

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, May 19.—The Commander-in-Chief of the Peking Garrison has issued a proclamation, saying that all the captured Fengtien soldiers have been sent back to their homes, but it is feared that some are still in hiding in the vicinity of the city.

A warning is then given that if men in hiding report to the authorities at Peking within a week they will be provided with funds to carry them back to their homes. An assurance of protection is given to Fengtien civilians in Peking engaged in peaceful occupations.

General Chi Shih-yuen, Tsuchun of Kiangsu, has just sent his newly organized Mixed Brigade to join Wu Pei-fu in the North, according to the Shanghai Journal of Commerce.

The Mixed Brigade is officered by officers from the Sixth Division, and joined the new brigade, which was organized during the recent warfare in the North a short time ago.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, May 17.—General Wu Pei-fu, according to press reports, has recommended General Wang Chen-ping to hold the position of the High Defense Commissioner of China. Wu Pei-fu himself wants no position, but as soon as his work in connection with the present unpleasantness is finished, will retire to his old position at Loyang.

Affairs in Honan 'Completely Settled'

(China Press Correspondence)

Paoingfu, May 17.—General Li, "Number One" Chief of Staff to General Wu and Mr. Pei Chang-ching, ranking advisor, have returned to Paoingfu from Kaifengfu and reported to the General that the affairs are completely settled in Honan. Communications have been restored to normal on both the Peking-Hankow and Beijing lines. Feng Yu-hsiang has entered the Tsuchun's yamen and assumed the Tsuchun's duties. Ex-Tsuchun Chow Ti and his fanatical brother, Chow Chieh, who has not been killed or wounded as reported, have been traced as far as Nanking, from which place it is supposed that they have proceeded to Shanghai.

An interesting side-light is thrown upon the Honan affair by the report of General Wu's two investigators, Chow Chieh, the degraded ex-commander of the first Honan division, has, according to this report, been under the influence of a Chinese neomancer for the past several years. This Feng-Shui doctor encouraged Chow Chieh in the illusion that he was destined by Heaven to become the founder of a new dynasty in China. About a year ago Chow Chieh built a temple dedicated to his dynastic ambitions in which the neomancer was installed as high priest.

It appears that clever agents of Chang Tso-lin got hold of this mentor of Chow Chieh's and as a result Chow Chieh was informed that Heaven willed that he should cast in his lot with Chang Tso-lin against Wu Pei-fu. The signal for action on the part of Chow Chieh was apparently the report of Wu Pei-fu's death. The neomancer informed Chow that twenty-four Heavenly bodies had come to earth in the guise of men for the purpose of establishing him upon the throne but that the obstacle to his ambition in the shape of General Wu's army must first be removed.

The Honan affair places one more debacle to the account of the 'Chang Tso-lin' faction. It failed to relieve pressure upon Chang at the time of his greatest stress and has on the other hand sufficed as a warning to vacillating tuchuns, south of the Great Wall. The Honan First Division has been entirely scattered. Some heavy fighting was however required. General Wu's Loyang base hospital equipment has all been moved down to Chengchow to accommodate Feng Yu-hsiang's wounded, while Kai-

Chang Puts Whole Blame For War On President Hsu

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press
Paoing, May 19.—The following is a rough but faithful translation of the text of a telegram received at the staff headquarters of Wu Pei-fu at Paoing on May 17. The telegram was filed at Luanchow and signed Chang Tso-lin. It is probably from the same source as the telegram to the consular bodies declaring the independence of Manchuria and may with them be regarded as a feeler sent out by someone close to Chang Tso-lin and under his cognisance, but in such a manner that Chang—if he finds it convenient—can easily deny responsibility.

The telegram is an attempt to save face on the part of Chang Tso-lin by casting upon the President the responsibility for his self-ruinous policy and consequent defeat. Naturally the telegram delights the staff officers and advisers of General Wu Pei-fu who are keen to obtain anything which places the President in an ill light and contributes to the fulfillment of their desire to get rid of him. The telegram reads:

"Since the recent cabinet crisis China has been practically governmentless. Chang Tso-lin, outside the wall, was not only not inclined to interfere but was without any policy in regard thereto. But the President sent his brother Shu Shih-chang and his secretary Wu Chi-suen, one after another to Fengtien with Presidential orders commanding Chang Tso-lin to send his troops within the wall for the purpose of overawing certain elements there. The President does not like any outside restraint in his use of men and his management of affairs and wished to eliminate these elements. At the time of these visits I felt that it would be not only outside my province but most difficult for me to carry out the President's desire, but his messengers and letters urged me to act without delay."

"I, Tso Lin, am entirely a military man and am therefore of course subject to the President's orders. Being without choice I brought my soldiers within the wall and distributed them about in garrisons. My thought was that the military movement would terrify the elements to which the President objected or might perhaps even bring about a settlement of the cabinet issue, at the same time responding to the President's wish. How could I know that from another direction troops would likewise be moving in approach to mine.

"As the Cabinet question remained unsettled, I, pondering the thought that the affairs of the Central Government were not mine and need be no concern of withdrawing. The President again sent the two men Shu and Wu to persuade me to remain, at the same time inciting me to fight by the assurance that the apparent strength of the Chihli forces was merely bluff and that one contact would show their weakness and bring about the execution of Tso and Wu, allowing the President to breathe freely. Tso Lin and Tsuchun (Tsoo Kun), are related—how could I kill him?—Tru Yui (Wu Pei-fu) is an old fellow soldier of respectable origin and worthy career. How could I with conscience strike at him?

"Ultimately, under the continued pressure of the President I was unable to refrain from going forward. War resulted. The ferocity and aggressiveness of the Chihli troops was beyond all expectation. The dead covered the field. Blood ran like rivers. What crime had these men committed that they should deserve such a death? The President's order, nothing else, is accountable. After seven days fighting, when many had been killed, supplies had nearly failed and ammunition was almost gone, I received information stating that the men who had incited me to fight had now set themselves up to judge me. How had I been defeated and crushed? I hated myself for my lack of foresight. Only after my lines were lost and my men were slaughtered did I realize that I had been made the hare (who was cooked when he had caught all the rabbits) and the arrow (which was burnt under the cook pot after it had killed all the game). (These are allusions to Chinese folk lore tales).

"I withdrew to Luanchow with the idea of solely withdrawing beyond the wall and protecting my own interests but Hsu Shih-chang again sent men to persuade me to renew the fight. At the same time he mandated my offices to other men saying that he was doing this to 'cover the gate' (a Chinese idiom meaning to make things apparently right with outside persons). With this kind of intrigue he thinks again to doublecross me."

"Since the Republican era the Government has been unstable, the military have frequently clashed and the people have suffered. The north and south have broken apart. But there is a man who intrigues in every direction. Han as a man has a very naive exterior. Underneath he is very shrewd. He will do anything for profit. Under the Manchurians he tricked a widow (referring to the Empress Dowager Tzu Hsi). He pretended to support Yuan Hsiang-cheng (Shih-kai) and at the same time took advantage of his trust. He incited Chang Hsun to restore the Manchus and at the same time convinced to cause his downfall. He used the Anfu clique—then covered the environs of Peking with their blood and ruined their leader, General Tuan. He put great confidence in Tso and Wu—at the same time using Tso-lin to bring troops to kill them.

"Tso-lin confesses his stupidity. He has been sold by Hsu whose crimes from the beginning are now manifest. If all men mentioned should be destroyed it would be scant pity to China. But what about the people. They are indeed pitiable. The repeated internecine struggles are incited by Hsu. Hsu is the fisherman who captures both the bird and the clam which has closed upon its bill. The unknown world calls him a peace-making old man, being in ignorance that he is the fuse to the dynamite. Tso Lin is already reduced to this state. He opines that Wu ed under the cook pot after it had killed all the game). (These are allusions to Chinese folk lore tales).

Dr. Wang Sees New Era For China As Result Of Wu's Great Victory Over Chang

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Special Correspondent of the China Press

Peking, May 18.—"I consider the present opportunity, which has been created by General Wu Pei-fu's victory, the greatest within the Republican era," said Dr. C. T. Wang, Director General of retrocessionary affairs from Shantung, last night. Dr. C. T. Wang visited General Wu and Tsuchun Tsao yesterday, proceeding last night to Kailengfu, where he will visit the Christian Tsuchun, Wang Yu-hsing, upon his way back to his duties in Shantung. General Wu had invited Dr. Wang to visit him and took the occasion of the Director General's presence to question him closely on Japan's fulfillment of her Washington pledges in regard to withdrawal from Shantung and to assure Dr. Wang of every support.

"I will not be able to tarry in Peking," said Dr. Wang in answer to my question. "I must get back to my baby. Shantung is a big and rather difficult baby to nurse and is likely to fall victim to all the ailments of infancy. I believe, however, that we shall achieve success in Shantung. The victory of General Wu is the greatest encouragement which we have received since the Washington Conference."

"I asked Dr. Wang what he knew about Wu Pei-fu's charge that Chang Tso-lin had a secret pact with the Japanese stipulating that the Shantung Railway should not be redeemed. 'Only this,' said the Director General. 'The Japanese delegates in Washington, upon their own initiative, first suggested that the redemption of the railway be postponed until after an assistant traffic manager and an associate Japanese accountant be retained in the railway management. Following Chang Tso-lin's installation of Liang Shih-yi as Premier and the well known visit of the Japanese Minister Obata to the Premier's office, this mild request of the Japanese delegates at Washington was suddenly changed to a demand for a Japanese traffic manager, accountant and chief engineer.'

"Through the good offices of President Harding, Mr. Balfour and Mr. Hughes, a compromise was finally arranged whereby the Japanese have a traffic manager and associate auditor, but these men must work under a Chinese director. Since the entire staff, aside from them, will be Chinese, and presumably in sympathy with the Chinese Director's policy, it is not anticipated that their presence in the administration will make possible any discrimination on behalf of Japanese interests. It is natural that the Japanese should insist upon a traffic manager inasmuch as they fear, although I can assure them that their fears will never be realized, that the Chinese will retaliate for past discrimination against Chinese interests."

"While in Paoingfu Dr. Wang arranged with Generals Wu Pei-fu and Tsoo Kun for rifles and other military equipment for the use of his railway police in Shantung. Although the Peking police head, Hsueh Tze-hung, has supplied him with six hundred men, trained by General Munthe and Baron Taube, the last batch of 300 arrived in Tsinan in April without rifles—the Peking police chief having retained their equipment upon the grounds that it was unpaid for. After considerable negotiation Dr. Wang persuaded Hsueh to at least lend him the rifles for the time being. But just as the shipment was made ready the war broke out. It took a couple of weeks to arrange for the 300 rifles to get through the Fengtien lines to Tientsin, the Fengtien customs, the Diplomatic Corps, the consular body and the Japanese Legation; and aboard a Japanese boat to Tsingchow via Dairen."

READY FOR WORK
"They arrived a few days ago and are now in Tsinan ready for distribution. Dr. Wang states that contrary to reports the Japanese were not obstructive in the matter but on the contrary rendered every facility. This policy indeed has thus far marked all the Japanese dealings over the retrocession thus far, according to Dr. Wang, who anticipates that the Japanese will continue to show reasonableness. Had Chang Tso-lin won the present conflict however there might be in coming days a different story to tell. Tsuchun Tien Chung-yu of Shantung is co-operating in every way with Dr. Wang's work, according to the Director General. Although he is by no means an efficient administrator and although he winks at corruption upon the part of his subordinates, the Tsuchun is placing no obstacles in the way of Dr. Wang's policies.

"My first concern," said Dr. Wang, "is to provide adequate protection for Japanese and other interests in the affected territory. The police administrations of the leased territory and railway will be separate and those of the mining properties will be under the control of their respective managements, to whom I will supply the necessary number of trained men. Baron Taube, General Munthe's right hand man, is now in Fangtze drilling 400 Shantung recruits and I hope to arrange for some assistance from the General himself. The police force which I will ultimately require will consist of about 1,600 men, 1,000 of whom will be natives of Shantung. They will all be graduates of primary schools, able to read and write and men who have passed strict physical examination. The entire railway line from the border of the leased territory to Tsinan is now under Chinese police administration."

Dr. Wang stated that he anticipated that the reversion of the leased territory will prove a simpler matter than the taking over of the railways. The territory will come under Chinese administration, he states, within six months of Japan's ratification of the treaty which according to schedule is to take place in Japan this week. "The railway will be turned over to China perhaps three months later. It is absolutely necessary that one of our best trained and most honest Chinese railway engineers be appointed director of the railway. We are now trying out various men from among whom the staff will be chosen," suggested the name of C. C. Wang. He is probably too big for the Shantung job now," said Dr. Wang. "He is now in charge of the Chinese Eastern Railway, a line longer than the Shantung railway and no less important to China's international prestige. It is more necessary that a man of honesty be chosen than a man of fame. I agree with General Wu in ranking honesty even above experience. A dishonest man of experience may be smart in intrigue but he will always neglect his real work, whereas the honest man although lacking experience will rapidly acquire it through application."

"I feel," said Dr. Wang in conclusion, "that General Wu must keep a firm grasp on political developments lest his victories be in vain. I am glad to hear that there has been a change in his attitude within the past few days. His aversion to being a dictator is praiseworthy and has my full sympathy, but at the same time he must remember that Chinese public opinion is able to express itself at the present time only negatively and not positively. He must therefore take upon himself the risk of mapping out a positive program. If the Chinese people do not disapprove he may know that he is right."

Lumbago.
This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dunn, Brockport, N. Y., writes: 'I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and I was up and about in a few days.'

"My first concern," said Dr. Wang, "is to provide adequate protection for Japanese and other interests in the affected territory. The police administrations of the leased territory and railway will be separate and those of the mining properties will be under the control of their respective managements, to whom I will supply the necessary number of trained men. The police force which I will ultimately require will consist of about 1,600 men, 1,000 of whom will be natives of Shantung. They will all be graduates of primary schools, able to read and write and men who have passed strict physical examination. The entire railway line from the border of the leased territory to Tsinan is now under Chinese police administration."

Dr. Wang stated that he anticipated that the reversion of the leased territory will prove a simpler matter than the taking over of the railways. The territory will come under Chinese administration, he states, within six months of Japan's ratification of the treaty which according to schedule is to take place in Japan this week. "The railway will be turned over to China perhaps three months later. It is absolutely necessary that one of our best trained and most honest Chinese railway engineers be appointed director of the railway. NATION WIDE HEALTH DRIVE LAUNCHED HERE

Campaign Started To Increase Association's Membership

At an enthusiastic meeting that was held last night at the Y. M. C. A. the campaign for members of the National Health Association that is to continue until June 15 while similar drives are in progress in other centers of China was launched.

The program was opened with music after which the address of the evening was given by Mr. C. C. Nieh, Chairman of the Reorganization Committee of the National Health Association. Dr. Huang Yen-pei then delivered an interesting talk on methods to be followed to improve the health of the individual and the health of the public. An interesting item of the program that then was given was by Mr. John Zane, Cartoonist of "The Evening Star," who presented a number of rapid-fire health cartoons. A general report was submitted by Dr. S. M. Woo and a number of speeches were made by captains of teams which will carry out the active work of the campaign.

Those present then were entertained with boxing bouts staged by members of the Tsing Wu Athletic Association after which a moving picture was screened.

Eight membership teams have been organized. Mr. C. C. Nieh heads the merchants' team; Mr. Seng Shih-ching, the Students'; Dr. E. S. Tyan, the Doctors'; Mrs. T. C. Chu, the Women's'; Mr. Loo Wei-chang, the Physical Training team; Mr. Z. F. Chen, the Laborers', and Mr. C. F. Hsu, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs.

The circular issued is the result of a meeting of 32 Chinese commercial associations held Sunday afternoon. The meeting follows upon dissatisfaction among merchants which has been growing for many months and has resulted in at least one strike recently.

Besides ordering the drawing up of the circular calling upon shopkeepers to refuse the "flag" coppers the meeting passed resolutions to request various local officials to assist in the movement. Mr. Hsu Yuan, Commissioner for Foreign Affairs will be asked to seek the co-operation of the French and International Settlement authorities to prevent further importation of the coins. The light weight coppers were rejected by exchange shops and tobacco stores yesterday as a result of the action of the commercial bodies, which include the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, the Bankers' Association and the Native Bankers' Guild.

A dishonest man of experience may be smart in intrigue but he will always neglect his real work, whereas the honest man although lacking experience will rapidly acquire it through application."

the Officials' team. Each team has set a goal of $5,000. Of the $40,000 it is expected will be raised during the campaign, $10,000 will be spent for health moving pictures.

These teams are to enroll members of four classes for the Association with membership fees ranging from 30 cents a year to $100 a year and up. Those becoming patrons of the Association pay the largest fee. Sustaining members pay $10 a year, active members $1 a year and students the smallest fees. Students of the middle schools and above pay fifty cents a year and those below middle school grade thirty cents.

In the course of the campaign it is planned to distribute a considerable quantity of literature dealing with the aims of the Association and spreading the gospel of sanitation and cleanliness. Other campaigns similar to the one opened here are to be held in Peking, Tientsin, Canton, Hongkong, Amoy, Swatow, Nanjing, Hangchow, Anking, Nanchang, Ningpo, Kiukiang, Soochow, Tsinan, Changsha, Kashiung, Changchow and Sungkiang.

Those actively supporting the work of the National Health Association are Dr. W. W. Yen, Dr. Wu Ting-fang, Dr. Fan Yuen-lien, Mr. Hsueh Shih-shing, Chancellor Tsai Yun-pei, Mr. Chu Chien, Mr. Chu Ching-lan, Dr. David Z. T. Yul, Mr. Shang Po-ling, Mr. P. W. Kuo and others.

Communications Bank To Drop Politics

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, May 22.—While it is unofficially decided that Mr. Chow Tze-chi is to become President of the Bank of Communications in the event of his resigning the Acting Premiership, which he is now holding, it is reported in political circles here that Mr. Chow is included in the list of the personnel of Wang Shi-cheng's Cabinet, and that if he is thus not able to sever his connection with political circles, Mr. Tsoo Ju-lin will be appointed President of the Bank of Communications.

The Bank of Communications has hitherto had under consideration a plan to break connection with political circles with the object of establishing itself as a purely private institution and now that the Fengtien troops have been defeated, the Bank has definitely decided, it is reported, to change itself into a private bank with Mr. Chang Chen as its Director-General.

POLICEMAN CHARGED

An ex-policeman appeared in the dock at the Mixed Court yesterday charged with accepting a bribe of $312 from a defendant in a larceny case. The testimony was to the effect that the policeman went to the other in uniform and offered not to arrest him if he would pay the money. The case was remanded one week.

ELECTRICAL APPARATUS FOR EVERY PURPOSE

This trade mark is the guarantee of dependable electrical equipment.

Doing the World's Work

Though the source of power may be miles from the work to be done, the electric motor makes possible its direct application to the task.

Westinghouse Motors do this economically and well, for they are designed to fit exactly their particular task and are built to meet the highest standards of quality and service.

Thus Westinghouse Motors are to be found in thousands of different applications.

They operate power machines in the workshop:

They drive the most powerful locomotives;
They drive the propellers of merchant vessels and warships;
They turn the wheels of thousands of street cars;

They operate lathes, presses, shears, tools, printing presses, elevators, and thousands of other machines—doing their work so well that progressive concerns have cast aside millions of dollars' worth of former equipment in order to install them.

They grind coffee for the grocer, chop meat for the butcher, sweep, wash, iron and sew for the housewife.

When the motor bears the Westinghouse Electric trade mark satisfactory service is guaranteed.

JAPANESE FORFEIT GAME TO SHANGHAI WHEN UMP STANDS BY HIS DECISION

Unique Situation Results When Batsman Is Called Out On A Half Swing At Third Strike Though Ball Hits Ground Before Caught; Umpire Did Not See It

If you were umpire—and there were two out, and a runner on second and another on third, and two strikes and three balls on the batter, and the pitcher let loose a hooking, fading-away out-drop, and the batter thought he might knock it a mile, and started to swing, and then, too late, saw the hook and the drop and checked his bat after it had passed over the center of the pan—what would you call it, if you were umpire? And, further, if the pitched ball faded and dropped so that the catcher scooped it up on a short bounce, without you noticing that the ball had actually touched Old Mother Earth, and the batter thought he was out and galloped unhappily back to the bench, and the fielding side threw down their gloves believing the batter had fanned and the side was out, like you said—Most any one would have duplicated Umpire Carl Neprud's decision made Sunday afternoon in the game between the Shanghai Baseball Club and the students from the Japanese Tung-wan college. Neprud said he was out, basing his decision on that swing, which he believed to have crossed the plate, and the batsman appeared to agree with him, for without a suggestion of protest, he dropped his bat and started for his bench, "to get his glove" as he explained later.

DECISION WAS VITAL.
The decision was vital to the Japanese men. They were in a promising position until that last out-drop was struck at, and when the halted swing was called a strike their manager and too many Japanese fans started a howl. The batter had not struck at the ball, was their first argument, and when that point was insisted upon by the umpire, the point of the ball having touched the ground before being caught was made issue. Someone got the late batsman and started him trotting around the empty circuit. Neprud gave the Japanese one minute to take the field and finish the inning. They refused. The game was forfeited to Shanghai 9-0.

The situation, though unique, is simple when one considers the rules. Rule 63 reads in part: "There shall be no appeal from any decision of either umpire on the ground that he was not correct in his conclusion as to whether a pitched ball is a strike or a ball or in any other play involving accuracy of judgment, and no decision rendered by him shall be reversed, except that he be convinced that it is in violation of one of the rules."
There is no rule covering the halted swing at a ball. It is generally considered that the batter has struck at the ball if his bat passes over the center of the plate. Neprud's judgment told him that the disputed motion on Sunday was a strike, and Spalding's interpretation of rules says that "no captain (the only man with a right to protest on rules) can protest a decision involving simply a matter of judgment on the part of the umpire. Rule 65 reiterates: "Under no circumstance shall a captain or player dispute the accuracy of the umpire's judgment and decision on a play."

Considering the play after the batsman swung at the ball: Rule 53, Section 3 reads: "The batsman becomes a base-runner instantly after 'three strikes' have been declared by the umpire" and the interpretation says "a batsman should start to first base instantly after 'three strikes' have been declared by the umpire." The batter did not run instantly. He considered himself out, just as Neprud and the majority of the 2,000 fans did. He walked to his bench, to take his glove and resume his field job. He forfeited his right

Interscholastic Baseball Tourney Schedule Is Out

DOREMUS TAKES FIRST SHOOT OF CLAY BIRD CLUB

The first shoot of the season took place yesterday afternoon on the grounds of the Shanghai Clay Pigeon Club where the President's Cup (40 birds) was first competed for, resulting in a win for Mr. Doremus.
The following are the scores:
Doremus ... 37 7% 44%
Moller ... 34 10% 44%
Barrett ... 32 12 44
Gande ... 36 7 43
Pirie ... 31 11% 42%
Read ... 37 5 43
Tuxford ... 30 12 42
Hexamer ... 35 4% 39%
Naser ... 31 8 39
This was followed by two Sweep Competitions, one a shoot at 40 birds and the other at 20 only. In the former Moller and Hexamer tied for first place, both having hit 40 straight, and the latter resulted as follows:
1.—Moller ... 18 5% 23%
2.—Doremus ... 18 3% 21%
3.—Read ... 19 2% 21%

ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY FOR BIG SPRING REGATTA

Rowing men are now busily engaged in training for the Spring Regatta which is scheduled to be held at Henli on June 3, 4 and 5 next, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.
Saturday and Sunday will be devoted to the usual rowing events, including: International Eight, Fours and Pairs, Grifins, Fours and Pairs, Junior Sculls, Junior Pairs and Junior-Senior Pairs.
Monday will be given over to various sports after the water gymnastics pattern, such as: Mop Fighting (in punts); Punt Races; Eight, Fours and Pairs, Grifins, Junior, Eight, Grifins; Yuloh Race; Swimming Tug of War; Plank Racing, etc.
Entries close this evening at the boathouse.
PLAN INTERPORT SWIMS
Owing to tilting repairs to the bottom of the bath, the Rowing Club's tank is not yet available for swimming though there have been not a few days recently when a swim would have been much enjoyed by members.
When the tank does open, however, it is expected that it will be well patronised by all active swimming members of the Club who expect to be in the running for interport honors. The local mermen may be hosts this year to both Kobe and Hongkong. In return for the visits paid in 1920 to Kobe and last year to the Crown Colony.
The International Swimming Club have not yet started their official season, but the Police are already enjoying their twice-a-week meets at the Municipal Bath.

TOMIOKA AND NOMURA TAKE TOKIO NET TITLE

(Reuter's Service)
Tokio, May 17.—The final of the Men's Doubles for the Championship of the Tokio Lawn Tennis Club was played today between Messrs. Nomura and Tomioka and Messrs. Oltmann and Yamasaki.
Play was called at four o'clock, and for the first eight games the opposing players alternated in taking the lead in the set. The final score of the first set was 6-4 in favor of Nomura and Tomioka.
The second set saw some excellent tennis on both sides with the final result in favor of Nomura and Tomioka by the same score, 6-4. In this set the Nomura-Tomioka combination repeatedly drew their opponents to the net, and then by splendidly placed back-line lobs scored their points.
In the third set, which saw some rapid foot work, and clever racquet handling on both sides, Nomura and Tomioka again emerged victorious with a score of 6-3.
The final of the Handicap Doubles was also played off. Messrs. Gurney and Koga defeated Mr. Iwasaki and Col. Burnett in two straight sets, the scores being 6-2, 8-6.
The Singles Championship will be played by Nomura and Magnusson on Saturday.

Cricket Scores

(Reuter's Service)

HUGHES AND WILNER MAKE HIGH SCORES IN S. R. A. LADIES' PRIZE COMPETITION

Score 100 Out Of Possible 105; Six Possibles Were Scored By Lancaster, Thomson, Waung, Blackwood, Hughes And Rebsamen On 200 Yards Range

Two scores of 100 each out of a possible 105 marked the annual Ladies' Prize competition of the Shanghai Rifle Association held on Sunday concurrently with Event 1 of the Association's annual rifle meeting. Mr. L. J. Hughes in Class "A" and Mr. R. F. Wilner in Class "A1" were the high shots. Six possibles were registered at 200 yards by Messrs. W. O. Lancaster, C. E. M. Thomson, W. C. Waung, W. H. Blackwood, L. J. Hughes and J. Rebsamen.
Owing to the large number of entries the Committee have decided to award eighteen prizes to ladies, instead of eight. The following are the results:

POSTAL WORKERS HOLD MEETING TO FORM UNION

Organisation of a Postal Employees Union has begun here Sunday afternoon when 300 Chinese Post Office workers met at the Yoh Shien school, 59 Avenue Road.

The meeting elected a committee of 31 to draw up rules and regulations for the new organisation, the object of which, as announced, is to better the social and economic conditions of postal employees.

Japanese Forfeit Game To Shanghai

As a baserunner by that act. He himself believed he was out, as hoped had ruled.

THE JAPANESE ANGLE

The Japanese angle, in their second argument is upheld somewhat in Rule 16, Section 3: "The base runner is out if when the umpire has declared 'three strikes' on him while a batsman, the third strike ball be momentarily held by a fielder (catcher) before touching the ground." But, then, if you, as umpire, didn't see the ball touch the ground, and if the batsman considered himself out and went back to his bench, and some Japanese in civilian clothes (not the captain, who alone is authorized to protest a decision) came on the field with a score of Japanese followers and declares, after losing several preliminary arguments, that it did, would you stick to your first decision? Sure you would!

The forfeiting of the game on Sunday will probably mean the end of American-Japanese games in Shanghai. Too often these unfortunate endings of fairly good baseball games have resulted through such bickering. There was the instance last summer in the series with a second rate Japanese team from Tsingtau which cost the local club so heavily in expense money, etc. Their pitcher balked every time he threw the ball, and when it was finally called on him he and his team-mates refused to continue. A like instance occurred in the preceding year.

The game Sunday was a good one, though loose in many spots. The box score below tells the tale. Cameron who was sent in to pinch hit for Wood in the eighth when Bruce was on second missed his chance when Bruce was caught off base. He came through in the ninth however, when none were on, with a beautiful drive to center for a homer which tied the score and gave Shanghai another try for the game.

Three-Year-Old, Morvich, Wins Kentucky Derby

Churchill Downs, Kentucky, May 13.—Morvich has won the Kentucky Derby.

Morvich, a three-year-old, owned by Benjamin Block, was the sensation of the American turf last year. As a two-year-old then he entered 11 races and won 11 firsts and a total earning of $115,234. Only two American horses have exceeded this in the last 50 years. In 1893 Domino, as a two-year-old, won $170,890 by capturing all nine races in which he was entered, and in 1907 Colin won 12 straight and $131,007.

COLUMBIA MEN PAY HONOR TO WELLINGTON KOO

Minister Is Guest At Dinner Given By Fellow Alumni

At the Union Club on Saturday evening about fifty members of the Columbia Alumni Association of China, all graduates of the various schools of the university gathered for a complimentary dinner to their fellow alumnus, Y. K. W. Koo, '09 and Madama Koo.

Dr. H. C. Mei, acting chairman of the association, welcomed the guests as toastmaster and in introducing Dr. Koo, spoke of the latter's academic career, remarking that his diplomatic exploits were well known. A few of the university "feathers" in Minister Koo's cap which the toastmaster mentioned were his editorship of the Columbia Spectator, his service to the Debating Society and on the debating team and his membership on the Student Council. He took his A. B. after three years in '09, his A.M. the next year and his Ph.D. in '12.

Dr. Koo expressed relief that the toastmaster excused him from mentioning the Washington or Paris Conferences or the 21 Demands or even the redemption of Shantung, and recalled with pleasure the college days of nearly two decades ago when with those present he spent the happiest years of his life. The two things he best remembered of Columbia were the spirit of Alexander Hamilton, which still animates the public service of Columbia graduates and the quality of whole-hearted self-sacrificing devotion which Columbia University instilled in her students. This spirit of Hamilton and self-sacrificing ing service to the nation he has marked in the careers of many Chinese Columbia men and women now working for the progress of the Republic and he was gratified to find Columbia graduates leading in many avenues of public and private usefulness, and he hoped to see still more justifying their Columbia training in China as the years went by.

Dr. Hawk's Pott said he welcomed the occasion to "come back" on Dr. Koo because the latter had at every opportunity passed very embarrassing compliments of his old teacher, he could not reticulate in kind as in the old St. John's days when he could condemn an offending student to a diet of "white rice." He was glad Dr. Koo mentioned Alexander Hamilton as in many ways the brilliant careers of Hamilton and Koo were parallel, in scholastic attainments and distinguished public service, even in their military service, for Hamilton was Washington's aide-de-camp, and Koo had expressed his love of military traditions by choosing the name "Wellington." Dr. Pott was asked to speak for the elder graduates and the ancient history of the university, he being a graduate of the class of '83, and recalled some amusing incidents in the life of students 40 years ago.

Dr. H. K. Wright, honorary secretary of the Association, responded for the graduates of the "middle ages" of Columbia, reminiscing of Dr. Butler's Critique of Kant's Pure Reason, of Dewey's pragmatism, and winding up with some of the typical dialectic brogue that prevailed on Morningside Heights.

Dr. P. W. Kuo, president of the National S. E. University, introduced as a Columbia leader in modern education in China, as Dr. Koo was leader in Chinese diplomacy, spoke for the latter-day graduates, and reminisced upon dormitory fun, with many jests at the expense of his fellow-students.

Mrs. Mei sang a delightful solo, followed by Columbia songs and yells.

The dinner was followed by a short business meeting when new officers were elected for the current year. Dr. Kuo, chairman; Dr. Pott, vice-chairman; Miss Caroline Huls, secretary; and Mr. Y. L. Tong, treasurer. The retiring treasurer, Dr. H. L. Huang, made a plea for the funds to complete the debating trophy to be sent to the University, and all contributions for that purpose may be sent now to Mr. Tong, A125 Szechuen Road.

Appeal Is Sent To Jewish Colony Here For Famine Succor

An appeal to the local Jewish community for aid in the work to relieve the famine stricken in Eastern Europe has been received from a committee in London composed of the Chief Rabbi of England, Mr. Claude Montefiore, Major de Rothschild, Lord Swaythling and other prominent Jews in England. The appeal states that there are over 100,000 homeless orphans in the stricken districts as a result of famine and plague and the situation of the entire Jewish population is desperate. Immediate and liberal contributions from all Jews in the British Empire are asked and Rabbi W. Hirsch, of Ohel Rachel Synagogue, will receive contributions here and forward them to London as rapidly as they are received.

Tung Urges Centralisation Of Treasury Collections In Report On Graft Inquiry

(Chung Mei Service)
The following is a translation of Chairman Tung Kang's report. As the result of my studies of the Ministry of Finance, I specially urge that uniformity be enforced in the collection of the Treasury revenues and the issuing of notes. The Central National Bank should be held responsible for the administering of payments for the Government, and could have the sole power to issue notes. This is a practice long since recognised by the foreign powers as essential. It will bring about a system which can easily be kept uniform, which is readily open to control and investigation, and which would permit easy transportation of funds during periods of financial crises.

The regulations published since the 2nd year of the Republic governing the Treasury are complete in themselves. At that time only the Banks of China and Communications were permitted to be the financial organs of the Government, being responsible alone for the collection of the Government revenues. When money was urgently needed by the Government and the two banks were unable to meet the need, it was usual practice to use certain uncollected Treasury revenues as securities for borrowing the necessary money. For this reason the Government was always able to meet the payment of its expenses, and preserve its credit intact.

NEW BANKS SPRING UP
Since then many banks have sprung up, and have dealt with the Ministry of Finance for the reason that they have been able to supply money when needed. Consequently many of them have assumed the right to collect Treasury revenues for the Government, and many employees in the Ministry have entered the service of banks in order to avail themselves of this opportunity for profit-making. Hence the Ministry has more and more accounts in various banks, multiplying without end and giving opportunity for various malpractices. In the course of our investigation we have discovered some cases. Here it is noted such an account transferred, such an item strengthened in its term, and every other species of irregularity.

With the collection of the Treasury revenues centralised and the Ministry prevented from making reckless transactions with any bank at random, it will be an easy matter to investigate the Treasury revenues, without wasting so much unnecessary time and efforts as we have been forced to do. Hereafter the Ministry of Finance should be instructed not to have transactions with any banks except with the Central National Bank, which should have the sole right to collect the Treasury revenues for the Government.

The Ministry will then be prevented from using false securities to obtain loans, which have occasionally resulted in bankruptcy for the banks concerned. It will be impossible to issue securities at random, and thereby working which have been permitted to issue notes. The danger now is that when one of these banks is unable to hold on, all of the others are affected. It is said that the Ministry reasons that with many banks issuing notes, it will be easy for the Ministry to obtain loans when needed, but this is a false promise. The Ministry should realise that when money is accumulated its effectiveness will be greater, and that when scattered its power will be small. Thus it is with the banks. It would be better for one bank to have the largest amount of reserve than for many banks to have various small amounts in individual reserves. This statement is in accord with the best economic reasoning.

BANKS AS STABILISERS
Another reason for the Central National Bank having the sole right of issuing the notes is that those banks also play an important role in balancing the money market, keeping an equilibrium between supply and demand, this being the most important function of a bank.

BANKS EASILY TEMPTED
Chinese banks, as a rule, are easily tempted to issue more notes than necessary in order to secure greater profits. The case of the Ta Chung Bank is an excellent recent example which illustrates this. Due to a loan made to the Ministry of Finance by this bank, it was compelled to issue notes to meet its obligations, bringing the bank almost to bankruptcy. It is said that members of the Ministry had a hand in the profit-making.

If such an evil is not remedied, the note issuing banks will be multiplied and the quantity of notes in circulation will be increased accordingly, thereby depreciating the value of the notes. When money is tight these banks will run the danger of having to redeem their notes immediately while those people holding the notes will be quick to demand payment upon them at the first also. The present measure is therefore to limit this right to issue notes to the Central National Bank and to cancel the notes of other banks now in circulation.

Those banks which have the right to issue notes and failed to redeem them during recent financial crises should immediately forfeit their privileges. Those banks which have been granted the right to issue notes and which have not yet issued them should also have their privilege cancelled at once. Those banks with notes now issued should be limited to the amounts now in circulation and these gradually taken up.

FORECASTS EXAMINERS
Small banks should be investigated from time to time paying strict attention to their capital and reserves in order to prevent inflation and speculation. The Central National Bank should be frequently compelled to perform their required functions. These measures we believe should be immediately put into operation to save the present financial crisis which threatens the entire nation.

The Banks of Communications and China should be combined. These two banks are our National Banks. The Government has borrowed enormous amounts from them. It is said that their loans have amounted to forty or fifty millions of dollars. As yet it is uncertain when the Government will return these amounts. These two banks have been striving to get some payment and have almost exhausted their patience.

It is now not sure that even though they do enjoy special privileges as Government banks whether they will be able to withstand another financial strain. The Bank of Communications is at present the weaker of the two, as respects its available capital. It was nearly bankrupt during the recent run through by the help of outside assistance it is still weak. It is feared that it will not be able to stand up through another such crisis. If it is closed it will be impossible for the Government to furnish the necessary funds to liquidate its debts. This will also affect the Bank of China.

We have thought long over this problem and have concluded that there is no better way to solve it than to combine these two banks at once into one bank in order to avoid immediate bankruptcy. We are assured that the shareholders of the Bank of Communications being convinced of the facts will be more than willing to accept this amalgamation, although for two such banks so different in their internal conditions much time and effort will be required in the matter of readjustment. But in order to save the present monetary situation we believe that this measure is absolutely necessary.

Signed Tung Kang, Chairman The Loan Investigation Committee.

one of the Graces

JUSTINE JOHNSTONE

Broadway's most sumptuous revels—poverty's lowest depths; beauty's most daring escapade, a careless wager to tempt and ruin a good man, an agonized effort to save a humble life; power of simple service for others; Lola in her luxurious boudoir, playing with men's passions, Mrs. Slattery in Mallory Court, weeping over her dead child—these are only a few of the sweeping contrasts in this superb picture which shows now-a-days highest and lowest life.

Wants Of Automobile Club Told At Annual Meeting

Contented Car Owners Have Better Roads And Pedestrians Should Be Controlled

The hope that pedestrian traffic on the more travelled roads may be brought under proper regulation and that in return for higher motor license fees the Municipality will improve and broaden thoroughfares in the near future was expressed at the annual general meeting of the Automobile Club of China, held yesterday afternoon at 1 Yuen Ming Yuen Road.

The business of the meeting included the passing of the report and accounts for the last year and election of the committee, which was increased by one member. The meeting was presided over by Mr. C. R. Burkill, other members of the committee present being Mr. H. von Heidenstam and Mr. G. Okada.

"The year under review has been an important one in matters appertaining to motor cars and motor traction," said the chairman.

"Last Autumn the first Automobile Show was held on a scale which was a great surprise to most residents in China who visited the vast matchless building. The best makes of English, American and French automobiles were on view and the excellence of the body work designed and executed in local garages was a matter for considerable comment.

"The cost of motoring has been added to by the serious advance in license fees charged by both Councils; garages have now to pay a heavy fee, hire cars and motor lorries are also very heavily taxed.

"In many countries the increase in license fees is definitely allocated to roads and it remains to be seen whether the Councils concerned are going to give motorists and garage proprietors full value for these increases.

"In any case, value for money will be expected and wider roads with better surfaces are surely due to the whole community; it is obvious that under existing conditions the old 'water bound macadam' road is entirely out of date and although other types of road surface cost considerably more money, it is wisely spent as repairs are lessened.

"During the past year, approximately 56.3 miles of road have been up for one cause or another adding greatly to the trials of all road users.

"I am informed that the Works Department have now much better equipment for road-making so that hopes for improved roads in the future are likely to be realized and at last the powers that be seem to have recognized that narrow roads 40 feet wide are of no use to this growing community.

"Traffic Regulations. Every right thinking user of motor vehicles must be pleased to see the enforcement of more stringent regulations for motor traffic and the institution of a traffic court to deal with the innumerable offences.

"The regulation concerning single line traffic in the Nanking Road is a most excellent one but many people see no reason why the motor car should be the only vehicle that is properly controlled. The reason seems to be that the car is licensed and also the chauffeur and therefore the police have a double hold on the motorist for any offence and consequently this regulation is easy to enforce. The Committee of this Club are in hopes that the police will have sufficient energy to attack other vehicles and evolve some regulation for rickshaws, handcars, etc., as there is no reason why motor cars should travel single file while in the same streets rickshaws can be seen running 3 and 4 abreast.

"As regards the habit of walking on the roads—the motorists' greatest trial—we are pleased to see that posters are being put up warning Chinese from wandering about the middle of the roads.

"These posters—put on a larger scale—were suggested by the Committee of this Club years ago but were turned down because we were informed that the Chinese could not read and consequently the posters were no use. I am glad to see that education has taken such vast strides in Shanghai in the last few years and the police have changed their minds as to the utility of posters—but we have yet to see any Chinese policeman on ordinary duty (as opposed to point duty) directing Chinese to get off the road and walk on the pavement.

"The membership of this Club only numbers 372 and there are 4,038 cars licensed in Shanghai so that we represent a small percentage of the motoring community but I feel sure that I am voicing the sentiments of all motor car owners when I say that we look to the Council to see that pedestrians are regulated—there is no pleasure in driving a car today in any street in Shanghai on account of the stupidity of Chinese pedestrians and there is no reason why the past policy of non-control of pedestrians should continue.

"I am sure all of us are pleased to see the interest taken in roads by the Chinese, and the Good Roads Movement has lately collected $30,000 for propaganda work and for the means of retaining an efficient engineer whose services are placed free at the disposal of Chinese road builders. At the moment, roads are being built in many places in China and the movement is far wider than people here have any idea of and although roads built so far are poor, it must be remembered that 20 years ago roads were poor in such a wealthy country as America and everything has to make a start and possibly when the facility of mud roads is recognized, we shall see good roads connecting many cities in China.

"I regret that the Club has not been able to offer any monetary inducement to its members in the shape of cheaper gasoline or lubricating oils, but it must be remembered that the garage business is an enormous one here, and naturally the oil companies do not favor cheaper gasoline or oil contracts with a Club of only 372 members.

"There is, however, a possibility of our doing something for our members in this direction shortly and your Committee are now working to this end.

"Although you may not hear much about the activities of the Club, I can assure you that your Committee is at work all the time in their endeavor to further the interests of car owners and members of this Club.

"I am pleased to announce that affiliation with the Singapore Automobile Club has been completed and a letter has been received intimating that visitors from Shanghai to Singapore will be granted the privilege of honorary membership upon production of a letter of introduction from this Club. Your Committee have written approving the scheme and offered similar privileges to visitors from Singapore to Shanghai.

"No nominations for the Committee have been received but the present members have expressed their willingness to serve again. Your Committee now numbers six whereas the maximum number allowed under the constitution is eight and owing to the difficulty experienced in obtaining a quorum at Committee Meetings it is desirable that a Committee of eight be elected if possible and I shall be pleased to receive nomination now."

The passing of the report and accounts was proposed by Mr. Burkill and seconded by Mr. von Heidenstam and passed and after Major Hilton Johnson had signed his willingness to serve the following were elected to form the committee for the new year: Messrs. C. R. Burkill, B. T. Peyton Griffin, C. Harpur, H. von Heidenstam, G. Okada, F. R. Sites and Major Hilton Johnson.

Chinese Staff Of Shanghai Hotels Tendered Dinner

Chinese employees of the Shanghai Hotels Company, Ltd., were given a dinner Sunday night at the Oriental Hotel by Managing Director J. H. Taggart, who recently purchased the controlling interest in the company for the Hongkong Hotels, Ltd. There were six hundred and forty Chinese present for the dinner, which was also attended by foreign officials of the company.

No Unimportant P. O. Job, Says Work

(China Press Service) Washington, April 21.—There is no unimportant person or part of the postal system, declared Postmaster General Work in a statement which he has issued to postal employees throughout the United States. Postal duties, he added, are accommodations performed for one's neighbors and friends and should be so regarded "rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer."

"The postal service of the United States," Dr. Work said, "affects more people in this country either directly or indirectly than any other agency whether it be public or private. It was established and is maintained for the benefit of and use of the people, by the people and for the people. Our ideal service therefore, is that service which discharges all of the functions of the postal establishment to the satisfaction of all of the people all of the time."

Heart Failure Is Verdict Returned At Cowell Inquest

A verdict of death from heart failure was returned yesterday at the conclusion of the inquest held by British Coroner G. W. King into the circumstances surrounding the demise of Mr. George Cowell, marine engineer whose body was found in the bath room of his lodging house, 36 Chapoo Road, on the night of May 17. Testimony was given by Dr. Marshall, who performed the autopsy, that there were no marks of violence but that the liver was enormously enlarged and in his opinion death was the result of drinking and heart failure.

Am'n Clubwomen Entertained At Tea

The home of Mrs. J. T. Hammond of 116 Weihswei Road was the scene of a particularly enjoyable tea yesterday afternoon when the Courtesies Committee of the American Woman's Club expressed its appreciation of the splendid work done during the past year by the Executive Committee and welcomed the incoming committee which is to direct the policy of the club for the next season. Previous presidents and those non-members who had entertained the club during the year were also drawn within the circle of the afternoon's hospitality.

Mrs. Hammond, the chairman of the Courtesies Committee, was assisted in receiving by the members of her committee and a large number of guests were present. The close fellowship which work for a common interest engenders created an atmosphere of comradeship and this delightful social occasion was felt to be a particularly appropriate close of a successful year's work.

Scouts Working Hard In Preparation For Jamboree Tomorrow

Boy Scouts are working strenuously selling tickets and making final preparations for the big "Jamboree" to be held on the camp grounds tomorrow in aid of the fund for a more adequate camp site.

In the ticket selling campaign to date the Cathedral School troop holds first honors, having disposed of 590 admission cards. The French School Troop leads the list on a per Scout basis. Scout George Tuxford of the Cathedral School holds individual honors, having sold 237 tickets, and, unless beaten by Wednesday, will be introduced in Major-General Sir John Fowler, K.C.M.G., D.S.O., and will be one of the Scouts detailed to hoist the flag for the general salute tomorrow afternoon.

SOVIETS TRYING TO SAFEGUARD INVESTMENTS

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, April 25.—The Soviet Government has sent to the League of Nations a memorandum on measures for safeguarding citizens' personal and property rights for the purpose of reconstructing the country's productive forces out of the ruin caused by internal and external warfare.

The memorandum enumerates the following laws published during the last and this year: the abolition of restrictions on leaving the government service, the abolition of labor mobilisations, the proclamation of freedom of pursuing any trade or calling within the country, the assured tenancy of residence, and the abolition of compulsory eviction; while a special decree establishes the secrecy of private correspondence, explicitly stating the manner of intercepting correspondence in criminal prosecution cases.

Civil liberties are completely enunciated in an All-Russian Central Executive Committee decree abolishing the "Cheka" (extraordinary committee) and establishing the State Political Department. The general supervision of the investigation activities of the State Political Department is vested in the People's Commissariat of Justice.

For the same purpose of assuring civil liberty guarantees, the Government is now revising the criminal code, which affects also non-diplomatic foreign residents, maintaining the unshaken principle of land nationalisation, the Soviet Government permits owners to transfer their titles to building land; also building rights are extended conformably to the fundamental land laws.

Concentrating all resources on a limited number of indispensable nationalised enterprises, the Government has organised the remaining nationalised enterprises on commercial principles by trustification, private concessions, etc. The Executive Committee grants the stability of leases, annulable only by the courts.

Recognising, for the purpose of world reconstruction, the necessity of attracting foreign technical and material resources, the Government has decreed for foreign concessions a series of guarantees against nationalisation, confiscation or requisition, and numerous other business privileges. The decrees completely guarantee private capital and freedom of trade and brokerage.

The Executive Committee has authorised the Foreign Trade Commission to organise Russian and foreign mixed shareholders' corporations for export and import. For stabilising civil and commercial transactions a civil code is being compiled, based on Western European principles and usages. Regulations based on the Hague Convention of July, 1912, governing bills of exchange, are already published.

A law on limited liability companies has also been published, covering also mixed corporations with the Government holding half the shares. A barristers' corporation is being re-established. The perfecting of the legal machinery in the Soviet Government's present special pre-occupation.

Philippines To Be Dry For One Day

(Renter Pacific Service)

Manila, May 7.—Despite the widespread interest in the coming elections in the Philippines, it is estimated that less than twenty-five percent of the qualified voters will vote. Approximately 1,200,000 persons in the islands are enfranchised, but owing to the registration in Manila at the four registration days preliminary to election less than 400,000 will be at the polls.

An interesting feature of the registration was the fact that for the first time in their history, the islands were "dry". Even the American and British clubs were forbidden to sell liquor. Only one arrest for failure to comply with the law was reported in Manila, and that was the case of a nine year old Filipino girl who bought half a glass of gin from a Chinese.

Some disorders among candidates for election have been reported from the provinces. One killing took place in a village in North Luzon. More serious are the disturbances in Albay, where General Wood is now inspecting. Candidates there have been promising substantial reductions in the land tax if they are elected. As a matter of fact, the land tax has been increased, and General Wood is emphasising this in his speeches throughout the province.

Colombia's President-Elect Visits America

General Nel Ospina.

GENERAL Nel Ospina, President-elect of Colombia, is on a "pleasure jaunt" in America. From the heyday of Washington politics he expects to glean some ideas that will aid him in the administration of his own Government. President Ospina was jovial over the warm reception accorded him upon his arrival in New York.

College Students Advocate Optional Class Attendance

(China Press Service)

Hartford, Conn., April 22.—Trinity College's undergraduate body has started through its paper The Tripod a movement for optional attendance at classes, the college senate preparing a definite program for consideration by the faculty. The student body asks that the faculty consider each student a free agent, permitted to go to classes when he so desires, provided he maintains a grade above passing. In event of falling below this grade, the senate recommends that the instructor direct the student to attend classes steadily until he has brought his grade up to required standard.

The recommendations of the college senate are in the hands of a faculty committee which will report its finding to the full faculty. Williams College and Norwich University student bodies have taken under consideration the Williams plan, and Trinity the students of Amherst, Middlebury, University of Vermont, Bowdoin, Colby and University of Maine.

The Trinity claims include one that if a student cannot keep up with his classes or realise the responsibility put upon him by the non-compulsory attendance plan such deficiencies should be dropped early in the college year. The Williams supporters of the plan have undertaken to sound out the faculty on the idea. The "Williams Record" declared that the present system of enforced attendance at classes as an "archaic system," and a "hang-over from a time when swearing was a high crime at Williams and when ability to write 'true Latin prose' was a prerequisite."

Yale has again adopted her former "quality credit system" for the undergraduate schools in the university under which students who merely manage to rank just over the passing figure will not be graduated. Under this system it will be necessary that work done shall be better than that determined by the passing mark in an examination. A student may technically obtain the passing mark but he may be refused a diploma because he has failed to show promise, application or general good work in his course.

Spot bar silver was up 1 1/4 d. and forward 1 d. in London on Saturday.

The New York price advanced to 75 1/2 cents, and the London-New York cross rate is unchanged at 44 1/2.

Our market opened steady, became firm during the course of the morning, and eased off just before the time interval. The highest rate at which Sterling was done in the morning was 3 1/4% for June-July, and the lowest was 3 1/4% for the same deliveries. The highest rate at which Gold Dollars were done was 82 for June-July, and the lowest 81 1/4.

Just before the time interval there were sellers of both Sterling and Gold Dollars at 3 1/4% and 81 1/2% respectively. However, in the afternoon rates steadied up again, due largely to Reuter's advice that the steamer "Egypt" had been sunk off the coast of France. This steamer is supposed to have had on board some £200,000 of silver destined for Bombay.

Business in the afternoon was done at 3-5 for May and June deliveries, and 3-7 1/2 for July-August. Gold Dollars were done at 81 1/2 for May-June and 81 1/4 for July-August. At the close there were buyers and sellers at these quotations.

India bought silver in London on Saturday, and the market there is reported as closing firm. New York report their market strong, with good demand.

Singapore Rubber Auction

Singapore, May 3.—Following were the prices realised at our Auction this week:

The London market has remained dull and featureless since our last report: 8 1/4 d for spot in London and 16 cents in New York were quoted this morning, which prices mark a slight decline. The local market has suffered from a temporary scarcity of spot rubber, and consequently the local prices have been forced up above the parity of the consuming markets. At today's auction there were offered 747 tons, of which 541 tons were sold.

A fair demand was prevailing but prices show a slight all round set-back when compared with last auction's.

Awarded Standard Ribbed smoked Sheet sold at 23 cents; later on during the sale, however, 27 1/2 cents only was bid, which resulted in the withdrawal of several lots, sellers holding out for the former price.

Sheet equal to Standard and the better lots of Off Quality Sheet sold to an interested market at prices about 1 1/2 cents down.

F. A. Q. parcels found also ready buyers.

Only one lot of Standard 1st Latex Crepe changed hands; the price paid was 27 1/2 cents. Crepe equal to Standard was wanted at the above figures, which

STRAITS LOAN

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 21.—The prospectus issued for the new Straits Settlements 4 1/2 percent loan, pointed out that the terms were similar to the recent New South Wales £5,000,000 loan, 94 percent of which was left with the underwriters.

It is believed that the terms are part of the Government plan further to reduce the interest on securities with a view to a funding loan.

A Survey Of Religious, Political And Economic Conditions In China, V.

NORTH ANHUI

By Hattie R. MacCurdy

N ten or more hien (districts) in the famine region of North Anhui many thousands of men are busy building roads. The roads will be completed before harvest and will, so far as they go, bring some advance in the condition of this backward region. The companies are forming which will operate motor service. The country people speak of lessened danger of robbers, because of easier communication with city centers. The wages paid in money or grain are saving many lives.

"Famine prices" obtain. There is no known precedent for the rates at which grain is now sold. When in April a needed rainfall came, prices dropped slightly. This is because the rich are holding their grain in the hope of still higher gains, in the event of a failure of crops this year. But the margin between too much and too little rain is so small a one. If it rains many days in succession the fear of flood returns.

There were many cases of drowning, during the flood, and of actual starvation and exposure since. Wives and children are being sold and there are many cases of suicide. Sometimes grown sons are hired out for a period of years to work for some wealthy family, and the pitiful wages, paid in advance, serve to keep a family alive a week or two.

Yet with all the physical endurance and the patience of the people are remarkable. Donkeys and farm animals are killed for food. Weeds are dug from the fields by the children, and even the ponds and rivers dredged for sea weed. These ordinarily fed to farm animals are now food for human beings, and dry roots and grasses, hitherto used for fuel, are keeping some needed animals alive.

Fortunately in most places the water receded early enough to permit wheat sowing, and if the 1922 harvest fulfils its present promise the loss of life will not be very great. But if this year fails it is said that one half the population will die, for resources are at an end, even among the well-to-do, for poor relatives are being fed, often ungraciously, and the physical resistance of the people as a whole is weakened.

Road-building for the men, and sewing classes for the women have brought many to their first real contact with Christianity. Many outdoor meetings have been held, as no buildings could accommodate the crowds. In some cases the school boys have gone out to the workmen's camps, Sunday afternoon, preaching to groups all along the road. In the Mengcheng district the Chinese evangelist in charge had a strong organization complete before actual work was begun.

with responsible men in authority. The result has been an unusually good discipline. It is reported that there has been no drinking and no gambling among the thousands of men at work there, and a fine spirit prevails.

There have been difficulties everywhere. Some of the officials co-operated only when their power to obstruct was exhausted. It seemed like a criticism of their regime to suggest that new roads were needed, and there have been many farmers who objected to surrendering the few feet of land needed for widening the old roads. In some places feeling runs high, and difficulties are not yet settled. But the great majority are appreciative both of the advantages of good roads, and of the provision of work for the starving.

Contrary to expectation the schools are full to overflowing. Education for girls has at last become popular, and there are even homes, untouched by direct Christian influence where little girls are escaping foot binding—very few such homes to be sure, but these things are an indication that even in out-of-the-way sections of the country, the currents of new movements are making themselves felt.

Machine Unreels Silk From Cocoons

Silk has always been considered an article of luxury on account of its high cost in comparison with other textile materials, writes United States Commercial Attache H. C. MacLean from Rome. This has been due in large degree to the labor necessary in handling the cocoons and preparing the thread for spinning. Consequently the silk industry has flourished only in countries where cheap labor is available.

After soaking the cocoons in water the thread has always been unreeling by hand, which is a work of great delicacy, but one for which it has not been possible to pay high wages. Thus, while silk weaving in Italy has been making progress the preparation of the raw silk has shown a decline. It is now reported that an Italian silk expert has succeeded in perfecting a machine which will perform the operation of unreeling the thread mechanically. A new company has recently been formed, which has taken over the patents covering the invention and will manufacture the machines.

If the invention succeeds commercially as well as it has in the experiments that have been made it bids fair to revolutionize the silk industry, and, according to the inventor, the cost of silk may be reduced to such an extent that it will be able to compete with cotton and linen.

Echo Of Explosion Guides Ship In Fog

It is now proposed to make use of sound waves to enable pilots to estimate their distance from land, says the Scientific American. By means of the special apparatus known as hydrophones the sounds made by explosions can be heard at great distances. A bomb weighing 100 kg., for instance, can be heard to detonate at a distance of 300 km.

When a ship employing this new process is approaching land it throws a grenade into the sea and at the same time emits a wireless signal. The latter is at once registered by a recording apparatus installed at the listening post. The noise of the explosion is also recorded, but only after the lapse of a certain interval of time, which, of course, depends upon the distance. If there are two listening posts on the shore, their respective distance enables the pilot to determine the exact position of the boat.

This method has been found to give results more precise than those obtained by radio-goniometric measurements. It is especially valuable in time of fog. During the war it was employed by the English monitors in bombarding the Belgian coast, which was invisible, in order to determine their exact location.

Whooping Cough.

This is a very dangerous disease, particularly to children under five years of age, but when no paroxysms, cough or other opiate is given, is easily cured by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Most people believe that it must run its course, not knowing that the time is very much shortened, and that there is little danger from the disease when this remedy is given. It has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, with pronounced success. It is safe and pleasant to take.

What Are The Great Ghost Stories And Why?

BY F. STUART GREENE

(Editor of "The Grim Thirteen")

The big themes in both fiction and history rank about in this order: Terror, Crime, Sacrifice, Sin, Death, Love, Happiness and sadness are not included; a narrative dealing with either or both of these may have interest and charm, but it requires something more stirring than these undramatic emotions to produce a big story. For narrative use, Death and Love, being common to all, are less valuable than Terror, Crime, Sacrifice, Sin. Because Death can be linked so dramatically with these four themes, it has more value than Love. Profound Terror is rarer than Crime, Crime than Sacrifice, and Sacrifice is rarer than Sin. As in the ghost story two, three or all six of the big themes may be interwoven, and as the writer's imagination is unlimited by the bounds of even the possible, his creative powers. But he must express his creation with a talented pen, else disappointment is sure to follow.

In this article the stories discussed will be gauged largely by the one standard: Is the tale convincing? To use the formula of the darky preacher, ghost stories may be divided into three classes: the Grim or Horror, the Pleasant ghost—which should be called the Spirit story—and the Humorous ghost. This latter class will not be dealt with here.

Strangely enough, one of the older ghost stories is seldom considered a ghost story at all; in no book of ghost stories have I found it listed. Yet what could be more ghostly than Washington Irving's crew of departed mariners, with their kegs of rum, their long pipes, rolling ten pins up the Kaaterskill Mountains, and putting the lovable Rip Van Winkle to sleep for twenty years! Though this story is a literary classic and more convincing than other ghost stories of the period, it gives place in collections of the supernatural to his "Spectre Bridgroom."

In any volume of ghost stories having Great or Famous or Classic attached to the title, one is sure to find Edgar Allan Poe's "Ligeia." At the risk of being called an iconoclast, I say frankly that in my opinion this is not a good story. No writer ever gave the importance to his stage setting as did Poe (witness the opening paragraphs of that masterpiece "The Fall of the House of Usher.") but in "Ligeia" his effects are produced only after very apparent labor. Besides this, the story is marred by its sentimentality. Describing Ligeia, he uses:

"I would in vain attempt to portray the majesty, the quiet ease of her demeanor, or the incomprehensible lightness and the elasticity of her footfall, . . . the dear music of her low, sweet voice, as she placed her marble hand upon my shoulder. I examined the contour of the lofty and pale forehead—it was faultless, the skin rivaling the purest ivory. Here was indeed the triumph of all things heavenly, the magnificent turn of the short upper lip, the soft, voluptuous slumber of the under, the teeth gleaming, . . . every ray of the holy light which fell from them in her serene and placid yet most exultingly radiant of all smiles."

There is more, so much more in this strain that it wears by its extravagance. But this is not the greatest fault. When the soul of Ligeia enters the body of his dead second wife and again and again brings signs of life back to it you simply don't believe it. Even so great an artist as Poe has failed to make the high spot of his story convincing.

II.

In "The House and the Brain," Bulwer-Lytton has gone far with ghostly experiments. The tale begins conventionally, a brief description of a house that no one will rent. The narrator gets permission to spend the night there and has an intrepid valet make the necessary arrangements for lights and a fire. No sooner is he inside the door than the Unaccountable begins. Doors open, chairs move from place to place, but as yet neither the "it" of the story nor his valet is in the least afraid, much less terrified, though the latter had received a sharp blow on the shoulder. When making an inspection of the place, the two men go into a back yard; the stones are damp, a dust of smoke grime is on the pavement. Then comes the first phenomenon actually seen:

"I saw, just before me, the print of a foot suddenly form itself, as it were. I stopped, caught hold of my servant and pointed to it. In advance of that footprint as suddenly dropped another. We both saw it."

It was the footprint of a child and it ceased before the wall of the house, leaving the impression that the maker of those tracks had passed easily and noiselessly through the solid masonry of the house. The effect conveyed by these visible foot-prints while the body that made them remains invisible is more convincing than if the entire ghost were seen, and the probability is heightened by having two men see the foot-prints. From this point the author goes boldly into the impossible. A door closes while the men are in a room; they cannot open it, but later, when nothing harmful has been done to either, the door opens. A letter is found and an invisible hand tries to snatch it away from "I." During all this the probability is increased by the effect of the unseen upon the dog which "I" has brought with him. But gradually, as the author grows more bold, the sense of reality is lessened. Lights appear, travel here and there, brighten, dim and expire, and finally, after the valet has rushed in terror from the house, spirits of indescribable evil appear and struggle with "I." The dog's neck is broken. After a night of horror, in which "I," through sheer will power, saves himself from collapse and possible death, he prevails upon the owner to tear down a wing of the house. Here is found the supposed source of all the manifestations, but the explanation lessens rather than strengthens the sense of conviction. The story is, nevertheless, a really great one, told in a style surprisingly modern and by a writer who has hardly received his due recognition.

III.

Charles Dickens wrote two ghost stories that are considered models, "The Signal Man" and "A Christmas Carol." A study of these will show that the latter is far the superior. "The Signal Man" is an interesting story; "A Christmas Carol" is not only a convincing one, it is a portrayal of human character that will live. The reader unacquainted with Scrooge, the ghost of Marley, the spirits of Christmas, past, present and future, and cheerful Tiny Tim, has an hour of sure delight ahead. The story is too well known to require lengthy comment, but I cannot resist quoting the convincing manner of introducing the ghost of Marley. Scrooge is crouching over a miserly fire on Christmas Eve, Quaint Dutch tiles surround the fireplace, on their "surface" from the disjointed fragments of his thoughts, "he saw 'a copy of old Marley's head on every one.' A discarded bell in the room began to move, then to ring, quickly followed by a ringing of bells throughout the vacant house. The cellar door flew open with a booming sound, something dragging a chain comes up the stairs and without a pause comes through the heavy door.

"How now!" said Scrooge, caustic and cold as ever. "What do you want with me?" "Much!"—Marley's voice, no doubt about it. "Who are you?" "Ask me who I was."

"You don't believe in me," observed the ghost. "I don't," said Scrooge. "Why do you doubt your senses?"

"Because," said Scrooge, "a little thing affects them. A slight disorder of the stomach makes them cheats. You may be an undigested bit of beef, a blot of mustard, a crumb of cheese, a fragment of an underdone potato. There's more of grave than of grave about you, whatever you are!"

The very simplicity of the dialogue makes the scene between Scrooge and his dead partner both vivid and convincing, as is all else in this remarkable bit of literature. "The Upper Berth," by F. Marion Crawford, is classic, and rightly so.

as one of the great ghost stories. A rereading of it, however, will surprise the disciple of the modern, economical style. The story is hung in an old fashioned frame. It starts in that cutworn method of a party of men in a club, one of whom tells the story, without interruption, to its end. From: "Somebody asked for cigars," the first words, to: "Somebody called for cigars," there is not one thing said in the 400 words between these similar sentences that is needed or in any way advances the story. In writing this beginning the author passed through a "blind spot." After this bad beginning, the story begins to march and few tales ever stirred a reader with a truer impression of horror. The author's use of the sense of smell is particularly striking. After each visitation to the upper berth by the drowned thing that insists upon opening the porthole and obtruding its unwholesome person we are told of the "putrid odor of rank sea water."

The struggle of the ship captain and the narrator with the loathsome thing is boldly and convincingly handled. Before leaving "The Upper Berth" I would remind readers that Mr. Crawford's "Man Overboard," though not so famous, is another ghost story well worth the reading.

IV.

"The Middle Toe of the Right Foot," by Ambrose Bierce, is a story that is every whit as good as its title is unusual. Few stories have been handled with better craftsmanship. It opens with a short description of a deserted house. "Grass and weeds grow pretty rankly all about, and a few shade trees, somewhat the worse for wind and leaning all in one direction, seem to be making a concerted effort to run away." Mr. Manton, the former occupant, had cut the throats of his wife and two small children and removed himself at once to another part of the county. Three men are talking on the porch of the local hotel; one says he could never endure a physical imperfection; had thrown over a lovely girl when he found that she had lost one toe on the right foot. A stranger sitting nearby, by takes an undue interest in the conversation, which is objected to; an insult and a challenge follow.

The four men arrive at the deserted house just after dusk; the stranger objects to going in, but is goaded into doing so; the two principals strip off coats and waistcoats in the hall and go into the drawing room. Two bowie knives of equal length are produced, the principals face each other, the stranger for fear from the door. The one light is extinguished and the seconds leave the room and the antagonists to fight it out alone in the dark. The next morning a boy reports having seen two men driving furiously from the house with a figure in white standing behind in the wagon, a hand on the shoulders of the seated men. That afternoon the Sheriff, accompanied by three men, visits the house. In the hall they find the coats and waistcoats. Crouched in a corner of the drawing room is the stranger, his arm held rigidly before a face marked by horror. He is dead. From the door of bare feet on the dust-covered floor. Between the footprints of two children are larger ones and the print of the right foot shows the middle toe missing. Then for the first time the reader learns that the stranger is the long missing Manton and that the three men had recognized him and set this dramatic trap for his undoing. For technique and for logic this story cannot be surpassed; it is convincing from end to end and is beautifully written.

It is generally thought that Oliver Herford has confined himself to the humorous and whimsical; he has nevertheless, on rare occasions, delved into the grim; at any rate he is a good judge of a story. He once told me that above all ghost stories he preferred "The Monkey's Paw," by W. W. Jacobs. The author launches this fine work with but scant stage setting. An ordinary sergeant-major comes into an ordinary cottage at the close of a chess game between a father and son. In remarkably few words it is conveyed that this father and his old wife are more than usually fond of their son. The sergeant has brought a dried monkey's paw from India; when he spoke of it "his blotchy face whitened." When telling that he had taken his three wishes granted by this repulsive talisman, "his glass tapped against his strong teeth," when he refuses to sell the monkey's paw to his old friend, he explains, "It has caused enough mischief already."

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt. Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Bringing Up Father

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

By George McManus

What Are The Great Ghost Stories And Why?

(Continued from Page 14) coals and after the sergeant has ready," and throws it into the fire. The father snatches it from the moving! he cried, with a glance of disgust at the object as it lay on the floor. The next day, after the son had gone to work, a man comes to the cottage gate but hesitates to enter. With such natural touches as

"Mrs. White hurriedly unfastening the strings of her apron, put that useful article of apparel beneath the cushion of her chair." Mr. Jacobs adds a realistic touch here and there. The man at last enters and by the indirect method of saying, "he picked a piece of cotton from his trousers," one is told that the son works in a cotton mill. The old couple then learn that their son has been killed, horribly mangled by machinery. The company admits no liability, but wish to leave a present.

Mr. White gazed with a look of horror at his visitor. His dry lips shaped the words, "How much?" "Two hundred pounds," was the answer.

Unconscious of his wife's shriek, the old man smiled faintly, put out his hand like a sightless man and dropped, a senseless heap, to the floor.

Later on a stormy night the old couple, grieving for their son, discussed the curse of the monkey's paw; the mother demands that her husband wish for the return of her son. He makes the wish, and after about the time necessary to walking from the cemetery to the cottage comes a knock at the door, at first faint but growing each moment in demand for admittance. The mother rises, descends the stairs and struggles with the lock. The father, dreading to have her see her mangled son, at the last moment seizes the paw and makes the last wish. The sound of footsteps of some one or something retreating from the door ends the powerful story. This tale is convincing throughout; one feels that not only could it happen but that it did happen. "The Monkey's Paw" is a masterpiece.

VI
There have been a number of ghost stories written in the last few years that time, I believe, will prove worthy of a place among the great. Among them are Frances Hodgson Burnett's charming, "The White People"; Granville Barker's "Souls on Fifth"; and "The Woman at Seven Brothers," by Wilbur Daniel Steele. But these and other today stories, I feel, have not had the test of time sufficient for discussion in this article.

Whether a story is good or bad is enough a matter of opinion without venturing to name the best or worst story, yet I shall be bold enough to say the two ghost stories that appeal to me the most are "The Turn of the Screw," a horror story by Henry James, and "They," a pleasant one by Kipling.

The former is known to so many readers and has been analysed so often, I shall confine myself to saying that the horror in this strong narrative is made doubly horrible by the idea of two young children being corrupted by the spirits of an evil valet and an evil maid. It is at once an atmosphere story and one having unusual plot value. Although the ghost of either the maid or the valet is seen nine or ten times, never does the story ring false; one feels that the spirits come and go and were seen. Mr. James makes these two ghosts far more real than are half the living characters met with in our magazines of today.

To do justice to Kipling's "They" would require more than all the space allotted to this entire discussion. Do you remember the storm that followed the appearance of this story? That some critics were even so blind as to cheapen themselves by trying to cheapen this really great work. No ghost story, and for that matter no story of any kind, can, I think, compare with "They" in delicacy and charm; and if it isn't the greatest of short stories it is the most artistically handled one that has been published in this generation.

It came out at a time when automobiles were comparatively rare, and Kipling seized upon this modern note, going into some details of the machine to add to the reality he intended to and did convey. The story starts with no attempt to set the stage for the supernatural; the first paragraph is a delightful description of the countryside where "one view called me to another," he "let the country flow under my wheels," until he was off the beaten paths and lost. Without warning he runs into the grounds of his dream house, and immediately—

"a child appeared at the upper window, and I thought the little thing waved a friendly hand."

The next moment he "caught the utterly happy chuckle of a child absorbed in some light mischief." In this way he first introduces you to "They," the happy spirit children for whom the house is an always open refuge; where the fire in the great chimney place in the hall "never goes out, day or night, in case any one comes in with cold toes, you see," and where the garden door is never closed. With King's best art of painting a picture in few words, the tender, blind mistress of the house is shown coming to 'I,' still seated in the motor:

"You're fond of children?" she asked.

And Kipling says: "I gave her one or two reasons why I did not altogether hate them."

One realises later that an entire chapter of love and loss is hidden in this short sentence.

"Her voice," he tells us, "would have drawn lost souls from the pit, for the yearning that underlay its sweetness."

Then gently this master writer leads one on, each written word carrying a hundred unsaid ones, and slowly, with no shock of surprise, it dawns that "they" are ghosts—it is hard to use the word for spirits made so happy by the blind woman.

With each new paragraph one grows more in love with the joyous spirit children, with the blind woman and more in sympathy with the 'I' who tells the story. How filled with ideas is this narrative! The tally sticks used by the blind woman, her power to visualise in color the thoughts of others, the setting of the playrooms for the children, the conception that those who have not had children have no right to see the spirit ones. Then suddenly, in sharp contrast to her idealism, the practical side of this interesting character is shown. No touch in the story makes for reality more than the interview between Mr. Turpin, the grasping tenant, and this blind protector of children's ghosts. Artistically the fright of this man is suggested. He stammers, his eyes rolled into every corner of the room, he half opened the door through which he had entered.

"His teeth did not chatter much more than the door latch." When 'I' moved slightly:

"That gentleman's not going away, is he?" he almost shrieked. I could not but admire the intensity of his greed when I saw him outflanking for its sake whatever terror it was that ran wet on his forehead."

After Turpin had left the hall comes one of the most beautiful of all ideas and better put than any we know of in literature.

"I felt my relaxed hand taken and turned softly between the soft hands of a child. In a moment I would turn and acquaint myself with those quick footed wanderers."

"The little brushing kiss fell in the center of my palm—as a gift on which the fingers were, once, expected to close: as the all faithful, half reproachful signal of a waiting child not used to neglect even when grownups were busiest— a fragment of the mute code devised very long ago."

"Then I knew."

Could it be possible to devise a more heart reaching way to bring recognition between a father and the spirit of his lost child? In "They" Kipling, unlike the writers prior to 1890, gives his readers credit for the full power to think. If you have not read "They" lose no time. If you have not read the story, a second or a third reading will bring joy to you.

When it is remembered that from Hamlet to Peter Grim the ghost has held the stage, and when one recalls the countless returned spirits met with in literature, the props are knocked clean out from under any idea of the editorial taboo. Because of many failures few authors will admit this but the interest in the ghost story is, if anything, stronger than ever before.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Dr. H. H. Tuttle guarantees genuine Castoria.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market." J. E. Sisson, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and frequently prescribes it, and always with the best results." F. GERALD STANTON, M. D., Boston.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserving the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere." J. S. ALLEN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria for colic for several years. It is all right, and like it for children will take it without trouble." C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children. I know the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children." J. A. BOGART, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood." CHAR. EDWARD GARDNER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Woman Aids In Robbing
Fifty Chicago Flats

Mrs. Gertrude Hartung, pretty wife of Paul Hartung, confessed Chicago burglar, has told police how she acted as a "look-out" and, wheeling her baby as a blind, walked up and down in front of fashionable North Side Chicago apartment houses while her husband prowled as a burglar inside. The baby buggy, she is said to have declared, was used to haul away loot from fifty flats.

Sans Pants, Youth
Tries To End Life

(Reuter Pacific Service)
Manila, May 7.—A unique case of attempted suicide was reported here recently, when a Philippine boy tried to kill himself because his brother had refused to lend him a pair of trousers. Local Americans are starting a fund to buy the boy the necessary garments.

Discoverer Of Tin
Mine Is Acquitted

(Reuter's Service)
Melbourne, May 21.—Mr. Orton, discoverer of the Badak Tin Mining property in the Malay Peninsula and Messrs. Scarborough and Clark, directors of the property, have been acquitted on the charge of conspiracy to defraud, on which they were committed for trial in December last.

Partisan Movement
In North Spreads

(China Press Service)
Vladivostok, May 20.—The White Partisan movement in the Yakutsk district is spreading to the south in the direction of Irkutsk. The population appears sympathetic. The Red Partisans are concentrating near Lake Kanka.

GREEK CABINET

(Reuter's Service)
Athens, May 21.—A "makashift" Cabinet has been formed by M. Protopapakis, with M. Gounaris as Minister of Justice and M. Stratos as Minister of the Interior.

WANG WILLING—IF

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, May 20.—General Wang Shih-chien has agreed to accept the Premiership on condition that Mr. Chow Tze-chi carries on until after the Dragon Festival.

Foreign Office To Have Press Bureau

(Reuter Pacific Service)
Peking, May 19.—The Walch-isopu is establishing a press bureau which will be under the control of Mr. Li Fong, an able and experienced official well fitted to deal with inquisitive pressmen.

Chinese Merchants
Object To Surtax

(Chung Mei Service)
Peking, May 17.—The wine merchants of a number of districts have asked the Government to remit the surtax that has been charged for famine relief purposes. The Government has answered saying that the surtax will run only for a short time longer, and that until that time it will be necessary to continue it. It is not a permanent thing.

Chinese Editors In Manila Have Row

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Manila, May 7.—The editors of two rival Chinese papers here nearly came to blows recently over a Shanghai despatch to an American newspaper where which referred to the sending of additional marines to reinforce the American Legation Guard at Peking.

One of the Chinese journalists translated the despatch into Chinese for his paper, but made the mistake of translating "marines" as "warships". The other editor pointed out in his columns that it would be difficult, not to say impossible, to send war vessels to Peking. The argument raged for ten days, with most of the Chinese community in Manila taking sides. Finally the American editor was appealed to as umpire, and peace reigns again in the Chinese quarter of Manila.

Dragon Boat Fete
Now Worries Peking

(Reuter Pacific Service)
Peking, May 21.—It is reported that Mr. Chow Tze-chi visited the Acting Minister of Finance yesterday and discussed means to tide over the Dragon Boat Festival. The financial condition of the Government is described as worse than during the banking crisis last year and presenting very difficult problems.

LENIN ON JOB AGAIN

(Kosta News Agency)
Moscow, May 15.—Lenin's health has improved to such an extent that he is taking part in the work of the Government. Telegrams are pouring in from various labor organisations bearing congratulations on his successful operation.

HURT BY BURGLAR

(Reuter Pacific Service)
Tokyo, May 20.—A man, presumably a burglar broke into the house of M. Dmitry Gregorieff at Yokohama this morning. Mr. Gregorieff, who grappled the intruder, was seriously wounded in both arms and had to be removed to hospital. His assailant escaped.

Austrian Cabinet
Likely To Fall Soon

(French Wireless through Reuter)
Paris, May 20.—The Financial Committee of the Austrian National Council has refused to sanction credit requested by the Government and the fall of the Schöberl Cabinet is prophesied. The Cabinet is encountering strong opposition from the Socialist and Pan-German parties. Paris, May 20.—Owing to the depreciation of the Austrian crown, 170 Austrian newspapers have ceased publication.
